Record tax cut predicted to be pared to $20 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The largest tax cut in the nation's history took another step toward enactment today, but with indications it will be scaled down from the $33.1 billion package of reductions voted by the Senate.

The House which passed a $19.9 billion bill, voted 281-18 to send the conflicting versions to a conference to resolve the differences.

"There will be a compromise," Speaker Carl Albert predicted.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said he expects the final figure to be closer to the House version than the Senate's.

The conferees are scheduled to begin work Monday and Albert said the House hopes to vote on a compromise version Tuesday.

The Senate passed its expanded version—designed to stimulate the economy with something for literally every American taxpayer—in the early hours today after a marathon session, 60 to 29.

The $33.1 billion package of tax reductions was passed on a 60-29 vote and sent to a conference with House members to work out a compromise with the $19.9 billion bill approved by the House.

The Senate bill would provide most taxpayers with a rebate on 1974 taxes of $120 to $240, guarantee a one-time $100 bonus to every Social Security recipient, grant a $40 reduction in 1975 taxes for virtually all individuals and provide an optional tax credit that would give additional relief mainly to families under the $20,000 income level that itemize deductions.

The package includes a $7.4 billion tax cut for business, mainly by raising the tax incentive for buying new equipment.

The $33.1 billion figure approved by the Senate at 1:40 a.m., ending an 18-hour workday, is more than double the $16.2 billion President Ford recommended.

In the view of some congressional economists, the net tax cut amounts to $29.3 billion because the bill also repeals $3.8 billion in tax breaks for corporations, mainly the large oil companies.

Many of the 29 senators who voted against the bill said they consider the total too large because of the rising budget deficits brought on by heavy federal spending in recent years and a loss of tax revenues because of the recession.

"This tax cut will not meet the needs of the economy," said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill. "It will show America that Congress is not willing today to face up to the measures required to meet the problem."

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and floor manager of the bill, said, "The strength shown by the Senate on this bill was remarkable."

The conferees will begin work Monday on hammering out a final figure for the tax cut — a figure that Long said will be around $30.5 billion.

With Congress due to start its Easter recess late next week, the tax-cut bill is expected to be sent to President Ford on Wednesday.

In addition to the $13.2-billion difference in the price tags, the Senate bill is vastly different from the House version.

The House bill would provide a smaller rebate on 1974 taxes, a special tax break for single persons and couples too poor to pay income taxes, and tax cuts designed for families with income under $20,000 that do not itemize deductions.

But the Senate increased the amount of the rebates, doubled the size of the special tax break and made it available only to working families, and voted for more tax relief for those taxpayers, especially larger families with less than $20,000 in income who itemize deductions.

Here are other key provisions of the Senate bill:

—$10 billion in rebates on 1974 taxes, between $120 and $240 per family.

—$6.1 billion in relief by providing for the first time an optional $200-per-person tax credit which is far more valuable generally than the $750-per-person exemption it could replace. This would benefit 57 million taxpayers, 47 per cent of them in the income brackets between $10,000 and $20,000.

—$2.3 billion in tax cuts this year by lowering by 4 per cent the tax rates on the first $4,000 of taxable income. This would insure virtually every taxpayer a $40 reduction.

—$1.5 billion as a "work bonus" for working families with less than $8,000 in income, an innovation designed to offset what many consider the regressive Social Security tax. This would provide a maximum $400 tax cut.

—$1 billion for a tax credit for persons who buy new homes between March 13 and Dec. 31 this year. The credit would equal 5 per cent of the home's purchase price, up to a maximum credit of $2,000.

—An additional $150 million to $200 million in extra emergency aid for persons who have been out of a job for a year.

Mortgage subsidy passed by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle-income Americans would be able to obtain federally subsidized mortgages under a House-passed bill aimed at stimulating the depressed housing industry.

The House passed the so-called Emergency Middle Income Housing Act Friday and sent it to the Senate by a 259-106 vote, despite warnings of a veto by President Ford. The vote margin was slightly above the two-thirds majority which would be needed to override a veto.

House Banking Chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., had pushed the legislation as part of the Democratic leadership's economic revival program, saying that the economy will improve only when the homebuilding industry is helped out of its depression.

Democrats estimated that the $1.3 billion in subsidies on a $12 billion portfolio of houses would spur construction of about 400,000 new houses, putting hard-hit construction workers back to work.

Before the final vote, the House rejected, 242 to 126, a Republican substitute to extend existing federal programs that funnel more money into private mortgage lending markets.

Republicans said the housing industry appears to be recuperating on its own but the promise of cheap mortgage money sometime in the future would thwart its recovery.

But the Democrats said their subsidy plan was a better way to revive the homebuilding industry and help middle-class families buy homes.

The bill would lower mortgage interest rates temporarily to 6 per cent, with the subsidy ending after six years, or to 7 per cent for the life of the loan.

Of the $1.3 billion, 70 per cent would go for subsidies on purchases of newly constructed homes, with the remaining funds permitted for sales of the backlog of new but unsold homes and the existing stock of used homes.

Eligible buyers could earn no more than 120 per cent of their area's median income — with the average such income ranging between $15,000 and $18,000 — and could choose a home valued at no more than $38,000.

Ten per cent of the $1.3 billion in subsidy funds would be allocated to buyers in high-cost cities for purchases of homes valued up to $42,000.

However, in such cities as Atlanta, Dallas, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Seattle, Los Angeles, Houston and San Francisco, the median price for a new home exceeded $42,000 last winter.

Right now, for a person buying a $20,000 house with a 30-year mortgage at the current average competitive interest rate of 8.5 per cent, the monthly payments would be $153.70.

The bill would subsidize the interest payment, dropping it to 6 per cent interest and making the buyer's monthly payments $120. The subsidy would decline after the third year and end entirely after the sixth. The buyer then would have to pay current market interest for the balance of the loan.

FBI find Hearst related car abandoned in a junkyard

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — A car once owned by sports activist Jack Scott, sought for questioning in the Patricia Hearst case, has been found in a junkyard in northeastern Pennsylvania.

But FBI agents refused to confirm speculation Friday that the car may have been used to bring the fugitive newspaper heiress and two Symbionese Liberation Army companions to a farm hideaway they reportedly used in nearby South Canaan last summer.

The Scranton Times said it located the wrecked and partially stripped down 1968 Volkswagen in West Nanticoke.

An FBI spokesman participating in the Hearst investigation here said the car "doesn't mean a thing to us," even for fingerprints. "It's been so man-handled and ripped apart there's nothing left to look for."

Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris reportedly spent part of last summer at the South Canaan farmhouse, which the FBI says was rented by Scott's wife, Micki.

Scott, who has not been charged in connection with the Hearst case, is a native of Scranton.

The New York Times said in today's editions that Scott had telephoned a reporter Friday with a statement that he had never met Miss Hearst.

"I've only seen her picture in the papers. That's all," the newspaper quoted Scott as saying.

It said Scott told the reporter that he met twice with federal agents before his disappearance last month and that he and his wife were subjected to wiretaps and surveillance by the FBI.

"We have done nothing wrong. We have not disappeared. We have simply taken a vacation from FBI harassment and provocation." The Times quoted Scott as saying.

Of Miss Hearst and the Harrises, Charles Bates, FBI special agent in charge of the Hearst case in San Francisco, said, "We don't know where they are now."

Miss Hearst, the daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, was kidnapped Feb. 4, 1974, from her apartment in Berkeley, Calif., by members of the SLA, a small terrorist group.

She later renounced her family and said she had joined her captors. She and the Harrises are wanted on a variety of state and federal charges, including kidnapping and bank robbery.

Drunk joyriding Red spy sent home

NEW YORK (AP) — A Soviet engineer said to have served as a top Kremlin spy will head home after being fined $150 here for a drunken joyride in a stolen cab.

The fine was levied Friday on Victor Maximov, 37, after American officials in Manhattan Criminal Court received assurances that the Russian would be sent out of the country.

Court papers said that Maximov stole a taxi while on a drinking spree March 14 and sideswiped another car before police put an end to his midtown jaunt.

The New York Daily News said it learned from high intelligence sources that Maximov was a top agent of the Soviet KGB, although he had been in this country three years as a senior engineer with Amtorg, the Russian import-export company.

"He's one of the top in his field," the News quoted its unidentified source. "He did his job excellently ..."

Maximov is to be escorted from the country on a Soviet flight from Kennedy Airport Sunday in accord with an arrangement worked out with American officials, the News said.

Judge Howard Goldfuss also ordered Maximov to make restitution for the car that he had sideswiped.

He was allowed to plead guilty to reduced charges of reckless driving.

Talk of coup in wake of South Vietnamese losses

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — As the full extent of South Vietnam's military reverses become known, talk of coup d'etat is again sweeping Saigon's rumor mills and anti-Americanism is on the upswing.

The general public still seems stunned by the news from the front, but those directly involved — the refugees streaming from the abandoned central highlands and the military men who have to answer all the questions about what went wrong — are trying to fix the blame on someone.

Most under fire is President Nguyen Van Thieu, whose argument that overwhelmingly superior Communist forces forced the retreat has not been entirely accepted.

"We are just waiting for a coup," a Vietnamese army colonel said today while blaming Thieu personally for the decisions to retreat.

The loss of the central highlands cities of Pleiku and Kontum was a particularly bitter pill because not a shot was fired for either of them. And reports that the old imperial capital of Hue would also be abandoned — reports later borne out by a Saigon decision to pull back civil servants and cease resupplying the units deployed around Hue — added to the unhappiness.

But experienced observers doubt Thieu is in any danger of being deposed right now.

"Who would take over from him and what would he do, march the troops back to Ban Me Thuot?" one observer asked.

Ban Me Thuot was lost to the Communists last week, along with most of the South Vietnamese 23rd Division.

Another observer said, "As long as Thieu continues to have the solid backing of U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin he will be totally in power. Thieu today is stronger than former President Ngo Dinh Diem at his strongest. Look what it took to get rid of him."

Diem was overthrown in a military coup late in 1963 after several months of civil strife in Saigon. He was murdered in captivity.

A theory that Thieu gave up the central highlands in a dramatic bid to force more American aid does not impress his critics.

"We just can't give up so easily without some kind of fight," a colonel said. "The people expect us to protect them, and may accept a military defeat if it came honorably in battle. But this?"

Ranger troops fleeing from Pleiku and Kontum have complained to reporters they were denied the opportunity to fight.

Particularly bitter at the government are refugees from Ban Me Thuot who left their families behind. "We were told our departure would only be temporary. Now we are gone forever. What about my wife and children?" said one Vietnamese official at a refugee camp in Nha Trang.

Anti-Americanism is developing more out of frustration than for any obvious reason. In Nha Trang, the coastal resort city where thousands of refugees from the highlands are converging, Americans have been warned to move carefully and only during the day.

Some Vietnamese have started shouting epithets at Americans there, and officials believe this and possibly violent acts could spread to other major cities.

Always capable of placing Byzantine interpretations on events, the Vietnamese have been quick to put the Americans at the center of the current military debacle.

During the Communist Tet Offensive of 1968, many Saigonese believed the United States had plotted with the Communists to allow them into the capital city. This time, Saigonese are saying an American construction outfit that built highways and other projects in South Vietnam for a decade has contracted to upgrade the Ho Chi Minh corridor from North Vietnam into the south.

Truck driver is charged with murdering Didier boy

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — A Rockford truck driver was charged today with murdering 15-year-old Joseph Didier, son of a Rockford City Council member.

The complaint, charging Robert H. Lower, 36, of murder, was signed by Sheriff Marlo Specht of Jo Daviess County.

Lower is being held at the Winnebago County jail in Rockford without bond, authorities said.

Lower was seized Friday at the Atwood Vacuum Machine Co., a plant where he had worked for three to four years.

Lower's mother and acquaintances described him as a loner whose hobby was snowmobiling. His mother said he was divorced and that he is an Air Force veteran.

Authorities said Lower was arrested by Rockford police Sunday acting on a tip.

The Didier youth, son of George Didier Jr., a florist and Rockford alderman, was last seen alive March 4 while delivering newspapers. His naked and frozen body, with rope burns around the neck and shoulders, was found in a Boy Scout camp near Apple River Canyon State Park in Jo Daviess County 60 miles west of Rockford.

A coroner's report said the boy was strangled.

Authorities said Lower would be taken to Jo Daviess County where murder charges were being prepared.

The mother of the accused, Jane Lower of Shannon, said she had not seen her son for several years. She said that she and her husband, Leroy, both were on disability and that the elder Lower, a former railroad worker, was suffering from emphysema.

Mrs. Lower said that he son was an Air Force veteran who lived alone and had been divorced for several years. She said he had worked at the Atwood company for three to four years.

Mrs. Lower was asked if she believed her son was guilty. She said she did not know. "He was always an easygoing sort," she said.

The custodian of the building where Lower lived, John Kruse, said Lower was a "snowmobile buff," and a resident of the complex said he kept several snowmobiles in the basement. A work acquaintance, who asked not to be identified, said Lower had come to see him Friday afternoon to get his signature on a petition to ask the city to expand snowmobile activities.

Kruse said Lower was "a real loner."

"I only saw him once with another person and that was a guy he was snowmobiling with," Kruse said.

Kruse said Lower "asked my wife what time the paperboy delivered the newspaper." "I was surprised he wanted to know because I often picked up his paper," Kruse said. He said Lower's paper often remained unread on the doorstep.

Depriving economy to spite Arabs

BY RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)— One of the more unfortunate bills of the season has been introduced into the Senate.
On the face, it aims at preventing control of essential U.S. industry by foreign interests.
This is a legitimate concern. But the bill, entitled the Foreign Investment Act of 1975, goes after this problem in a way that can only be likened to hitting a fly sitting on a glass table with a sledge hammer mounted on an armored truck.
Most of its provisions could apply to such enterprises as bakeries, producers of canned soup, manufacturers of turpentine, children's toys and soft drinks as well as to crucial industries—providing only that the business involved had total assets exceeding $1 million. These days, with inflation being what it is, that includes a massive number of companies.
It would put tens of thousands of American companies to much red tape, searching out and reporting on the indirect as well as direct owners and beneficiaries of its stocks and their nationalities, American and foreign alike, small investors and large. This would involve learning the beneficial owners of stocks bought and held by investment companies, banks and other such. An almost impossible and dreadfully costly requirement.

It would open the owners of stock in most American public companies, including those who own a dozen or so shares, to a host of predators. The action, in fact, would be equivalent to making public the savings and checking accounts of every citizen, rich and poor. In this, the bill is unquestionably unconstitutional.
It would, by making public the holdings of every shareholder in most public companies, make it much easier for professional raiders to gain control of firms and strip them clean, leaving those who had not sold out early with greatly devalued certificates of ownership.

It would, by the red tape and publicity involved, discourage a considerable amount of that foreign investment which has served this country well. Those who have forgotten should look at the record, note how much of this country's economic base was established through strong inputs of money from abroad.
Many Americans decry the export of jobs resulting from large-scale investments abroad by U.S. Concerns. Yet this action is detrimental to foreign holdings here which create jobs for Americans. Even when put into a running company, such inputs free other capital for establishing new or expanding old enterprises.
Added note: This bill would authorize the president to ban those foreign investments here he thought unwise, an arbitrary power certain to be abused by some future chief executive.
Make no mistake about it. There is justifiable concern that oil-rich Arabs and others could gain an undue say in strategic American concerns to the detriment of national security. There is also the danger foreign owners of high-technology firms could pass on advanced company secret knowhow to potential enemies of this country.
But there are laws already on the books which prevent foreign interests from involvement in a U.S. company in any way which gives them access to military and diplomatic secret material. If these laws have loopholes, these can be specifically corrected.
If there are other fields where foreign ownership would be unwise in our national interest, let Congress specify them and provide the necessary legislation. It is quite possible to restrict the access of foreign owners to high-technology secrets without limiting their right to buy reasonable amounts of stock.

Ford housecleaner; GOP prospects

With seven months of his presidency behind him, Gerald Ford has 20 more to go till the 1976 elections—in which, he insists against an undercurrent of skepticism, he will be a candidate.

The country owes him a debt for having wiped the White House clean of the stains of furtiveness, malice, mendacity and illegality that disfigured it when Richard Nixon was in charge. Much of the open, civil manner of doing business that is natural to American government has been restored. Nixon's overcentralization of decisions in the White House has gone, and the executive departments are being run as they should be, through the cabinet of officers whom President Nixon's men despised and bypassed.
What else can President Ford claim? The sad facts are that in the management of the economy his seven months have for practical purposes been wasted, and that economic management bids fair to be the decisive presidential campaign issue in 1976.

Admonishing Congress for its slowness in passing a tax cut many be good clean political fun but what he proposed in October was an income tax surcharge, combined with cuts in federal spending, to restrain the inflation. That was when he was recruiting citizens to fight inflation, urging people to tighten their belts and promising that "Uncle Sam" would tighten his.

Not until January did he accept that deficit spending could not be avoided and that the economy needed stimulus, not restraint.
Sheer bad advice from advisers who failed to read the signs is part of the explanation, but it is also true that abhorrence of deliberate public spending and the moralistic approach to fiscal and monetary policy are well-established Republican trademarks. Now and then the American electorate does deliberately prefer the hands-off approach, but that is usually when it feels prosperous, not when it has severe unemployment either before its eyes or fresh in its memory.

It turned the Democrats out after the great panic of 1893, and the Republicans out after the great depression of 1929. These were almost the only big tidal movements in American politics in the past 90 years, tidal in the sense that each event changed the dominant party both in Congress and in the White House and gave the newcomers a long run.
Richard Nixon managed to edge the Democrats out of the White House, though not out of the majority in Congress, in 1968 at a time of full employment, dissen-sion over an unpopular foreign war, and social turbulence. The then "social issue," the fear of the racial minorities, the young and the cultural dissidents which Richard Scammon and Ben Wat-tenberg saw as the great untapped source of political capital for the 1970s, not only has lost some of its richness but also now belongs not to the Republican party but to another.

Gov George Wallace, paralyzed, hopeless as a presidential prospect, is still in full command of his following and of the wit and zest that make him the joker in the pack of cards. Nixon and Ag-new managed to rake in the Wal-lace vote in 1972, but no reason exists for supposing that Ford and Rockefeller can get it in 1976.
What is left for them in this ap-parent evening of their earnest endeavors? Unfortunately for Ford-Rockefeller team and their party, what is left is the steady rise in unemployment from 3.4 per cent when Nixon took office just over six years ago to well over 8 per cent last month.
Gross national product has fallen, real earnings have de-clined, and the signs are abun-dant that the Ford administration might have anticipated these de-velopments and moved against them but for a doctrinal repug-nance to inflationary sin.

Accurately, if from one side, the handsome, ambitious young

Sen. William Brock from Chatta-nooga described the Republican predicament the other day:
"Let's stand for something. Until we do, the word Republican will be associated with Water-gate, big business and hard times."
And so, for a number of years to come, it will: but what is the alternative?
In the language of intra-Re-publican politics, "Stand for something" is the code phrase of those who call themselves con-servatives: balance the budget come what may, let the unemployed grit their teeth, let Penn Central close down, stop interfering, let market forces work—to particu-larize only the domestic policy of it.

Just now the conservative Re-publicans are campaigning less against the Democrats than against the Republican trimmers, the practical, durable men who get elected in populous northern states like New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Illinois by dealing with problems as they come but who never command a majority in the national party convention.

To get something done about the economy and the oil problem, President Ford is feeling his way towards compromise with the Democratic majorities in Con-gress—and so the rumblings of conservative protest grow louder, expressing almost unchanged the spirit that brought about the Goldwater disaster in 1964.

The party's conservatives are not inclined to forgive President Ford for even making Nelson Rockefeller vice president. As for Ford himself, the conservative Republican congressman Philip Crane of Illinois calls him "a caretaker president." He seems designated at best to prevent the party splitting too badly apart in next year's nominating process, but is hardly given a chance in the election itself if the Democrats can come up with a half-decent opponent.

Shah ends Iran's 'democracy'

TEHERAN (LENS)— Long deprived of the realities of political democracy, Iranians last week lost the trappings as well. The Shah formally abandoned his attempts to prop up Iran's fragile multiparty system. In its place he announced the formation of a single party and clapped on it the title, reminiscent of so many of this century's authoritarian regimes, of National Resurgence Movement.
All Iranians who believe in the three principles of the monarchy, the constitution and the Shah's "white revolution" just join the new party. Anybody who does not accept these principles, he de-clared, should leave the country or go to jail.
Those who try sitting on the fence will be protected by law but they "should not have any ex-pectations."
The secretary-general of the new organization will be Amir Abbas Hoveyda, who has been Iran's prime minister for 10 years and who indicated recently that he would not mind stepping down. Instead he will combine both jobs. The Shah predicted that "he can perhaps go on at this rate without collapsing for another two years." Soon after the announce-ment a wave of "shahdulation" had swept the pages of the local press, with the cabinet, major in-dustrialists, civil servants, news-paper publishers and their staff, and workers' associations, all pledging their loyalty to the Shah and his new party.

The significance of this sad spectacle of national humiliation is not the collapse of the multipar-ty system. As the Shah himself tacitly admitted, an opposition party had become irrelevant.
The last two leaders of the Mardom party, formerly the main "opposition" group, were plucked from their posts for mis-takenly believing that it was their duty to oppose.
But as the economy has notched up increasingly impressive rates of growth, due largely to the rise in oil prices, so, paradoxical-ly, there has been a shrinking in the parameters of public debate about government policy that most educated Iranians would like and had expected to see.
The bulk of the smaller news-papers and magazines have been closed, and the major dailies have been more tightly censored. Fewer books are being published; this reflects a nervousness about any-thing that could be classified as "subversive" by the secret police (Savak), whose power and unpop-ularity are growing.

In recent months almost every university in the country has ei-ther been on strike or been shut down because of student protests at the arrest of political prisoners. An academic year has thus been virtually lost in a country which is desperately short of trained manpower and is trying to telescope into a few years an in-dustrialization program that would take most nations decades to carry out.
Given the scale of the Shah's ambitions, these are strains he can ill afford. The university dis-turbances were probably the most important factor behind his decision to seek what could be touted as a reaffirmation of popu-lar support through the medium of a one-party state.
As yet there is no telling what effect this will have on the sensi-ble program of decentralization that Iran's interior minister has been implementing to offset the gravitation of wealth and power to Teheran.
But the creation of a so-called resurgence movement cannot be pleasing to the technocrats and professional classes on whom the Shah's technological revolution must depend. So it may well turn out to be as self-defeating as it is contrived.

Arab blacklist tests U.S.

By DON OAKLEY
Just how high a price are Ameri-cans willing to pay for Arab oil?
The Jewish civil rights organiza-tion, B'nai B'rith, charges that two federal agencies, the Overseas In-vestment Corp. and the Army Corp of Engineers, refuse to hire Jews for jobs in the Middle East.
In testimony before a Senate sub-committee the other day, Col. Wil-liam Durham confirmed that the Corps of Engineers does not assign Jewish officers to construction projects in Saudi Arabia because of Arab demands.
According to Sen. Frank Church

(D-Idaho), 1,500 U.S. firms are on an Arab boycott list because they do business with Israel. Many of them have been on the list for years. But it didn't matter because more money was to be made dealing with Israel than with the Arabs—until, that is, things changed and we learned that, contrary to Mao Tse-tung's famous dictum, all power flows not from the barrel of a gun from from oil.
Most recently, Western banking houses have acceded to Arab de-mands to blacklist Jewish bankers from participation in Arab invest-ment programs.
All of which has led President

Ford to issue a vague warning to the Arabs that "such discrimination is totally contrary to the American po-sition and repugnant to American principles."
Does this mean that unless the Arabs shape up we will reconsider our aid programs, pull our military and civilian personnel back home or take other countermeasures? We'll see.
In the meantime, it is at least cu-rious to be told by this same Presi-dent that the pouring of another half-billion dollars into the Indochina sinkhole is necessary to preserve American honor and credibility.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A word please to that crazy lady who wrote, "C'mon, Ann, what would the wedding night be like if BOTH were virgins?" Her point was that a man should be experienced or the nuptial night would be a disaster. She's wrong.

I was 20 when I married and Jim was 21. We were both virgins. I admit I was a little scared at first, but a sense of humor can make all the difference in the world. I'm sorry we didn't have a recording machine under the bed. We kidded each other, made jokes about our clumsiness and laughed until the tears rolled down our cheeks. It was one of the most hilarious evenings of our lives.

Laughter can be a great tension-breaker and that's the way it worked for us. Actually nothing much happened that night but it was just as well. We were both exhausted from the wedding and reception. He promised me, "Tomorrow night it will be different." I replied, still laughing, "It had BETTER be or I'm going home to mother."

Now, 20 years later, we are extremely happy and have a wonderful sex life. People who care about each other don't need experience. Just a lot of love and patience will do. — Just Ask Us

Dear Just: Thank you for sharing an intimate experience. You are so right about laughter. It can be an escape valve that prevents many a catastrophe. Your letter was a perfect example. Jim WHITE LAMBSKIN leather fashions this washable coat, which is just right for any occasion in a woman's life—rain or shine. Styled with a lowered waistline, a wide collar and cuffed pockets, it is accented by fine stitched trapunto detailing.

Preceptor Chapter

Preceptor Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, will meet at 7 p.m. for an Easter party in the Lee County Nursing Home. The party for residents of the home, will be followed by a business session in the home of Mrs. Duane Bothe, 521 Second Ave.

Sailor look PRINTED PATTERN

Dear Ann Landers: This letter might not be appropriate column material, but I'm writing anyway. Maybe it will give the average citizen a clue as to why certain issues are voted against, even though they are in the best interest of the public.

A badly-needed one-cent sales tax was rejected by the electorate in our community last week. A woman told me, "my baby was mistreated by the coach and I decided not to vote for anything that might help the school system."

I taught her six-foot, one-inch "baby" when he was in junior high. He was the meanest kid I ever had in all my years of teaching. Isn't this ridiculous? — Trout, Louisiana

Dear Trout: Of course it's ridiculous — but people vote their prejudices and short-term self-interests. The only way we'll ever overcome such ignorance is by educating the public.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 33-year-old divorced woman with a young son. The man who wants to marry me is brilliant, attractive, successful, kind, considerate and he has a marvelous disposition. So what's the problem? The man doesn't stop talking.

From the moment we meet he launches into a detailed account of what he did during the day. He goes from one subject to another. If I try to interrupt he keeps right on talking. When he asks me a question he answers it himself. If he tells me he'd like an opinion, he keeps talking and gives me one.

When we are with friends or his family, I never say boo. People must think I'm an imbecile or that I was born without vocal cords. Any advice? — Mute Mazie

Dear M.M.: This man is a compulsive talker and you can't do a bloomin' thing about it. Do his virtues compensate for what might turn out to be a nerve-shredding deficiency? This I can tell you — if his non-stop talking bothers you now, it will drive you bananas after you are married.

Public piano recital by Robert Hale Tuesday night

Robert Hale, son of Dr. and Mrs. Luther H. Hale, Dixon, will present a piano recital at 8 p.m., Tuesday, in the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Hale, a current student of Dr. Steven Barwick at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, will perform three movements of Mozart's Sonata in B-Flat K.281, including Allegro, Andante Amoroso and Rondeau; Allegro; Franz Liszt's Sonetto del Petrarca No. 104; Chopin's Ballade No. 4 in F Minor, Opus 52; PIANO Variations (1930) by Copeland, and two movements of Ravel's Miroirs, Une barque sur l'océan and Alborada del gracioso.

Mr. Hale is a former student of Miss Marie Worley, Dixon, and he has also studied with Dr. Robert Mueller and Dr. Kent Werner at S.I.U.

The recital, which is free and open to the public, will be followed by a reception in the church social hall.

The hare is the real Easter symbol

Maybe they are splitting a "hare" but researchers say it is the hare, not the rabbit, that should be honored as the secular Easter symbol.

What's the difference? Little, really. But there are distinctions between the two members of the same family, and probably the record should be set straight by someone.

Easter is a lunar festival, its date dependent on the phase of the moon. From antiquity, the hare — not the rabbit — has been a symbol for the moon.

Consider the following evidence: Hares are born with their eyes open, rabbits are born blind. The Egyptian name for hare was un, meaning "open" or "to open." Egyptians knew the full moon watched open-eyed throughout the night, and according to legend, the hare was thought never to blink its eyes.

Like the moon, the hare is a nocturnal creature. Its gestation period is one month. And everyone knows a month equals a full cycle of the moon. Moon and hare were also both considered to be hermaphroditic, the waxing moon being masculine and the waning moon feminine.

Why is the rabbit better known than the hare as an Easter symbol? It's probably just a matter of language and usage, and not an intentional slight of the hare.

The hare, however, is getting more and more recognition on Easter greeting cards these days, even if most of it is in the form of a pun.

Probably the most "hare-raising" message this year is on a three-panel card which, when unfolded, shows an army of hares strung out in a line from foreground to background. "This is an old Easter card," the message begins and it concludes with "Notice the receding hare line."

Okay. But what about the Easter bunny and all those colored eggs? Well, the Easter bunny used to be a bird, you see. But that's another legend.

Stitchin' time A spring tunic pantsuit

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

Looking for a bright new way to swing into spring?

Try a tunic pantsuit. Easy to make, easy to wear with belt or sash, blouse or sweater, it can give you a dozen different looks from a single sewing session.

The terrific tunic described is from a pattern available exclusively to readers of Dixon Evening Telegraph. There are three pieces: the pullon pants, the popover top and a long-sleeved shirt with bias roll collar. Lengthen the shirt and tunic and you have a daytime-length dress with tunic.

A soft, bright knit of Creslan acrylic fiber is ideal for an outfit like this. Creslan fibers are dependably easy-care and long-wearing and are as soft, warm and heavenly-to-handle as a finesheer wool. Inexpensive, too — this outfit can be made for about $15.

Get a head start on spring and order your Young Original pattern now. It has a photo-guide to make pattern assembly easy, plus a companion coordinator showing several ways to vary the basic pattern and suggesting accessories that will contribute to a complete fashion look.

Young Originals Pattern B-193 comes in misses' sizes 8 to 18. Just $1.25 includes postage and handling.

And while you're ordering, send for the spring and summer edition of Basic Fashion. It's the brand-new pattern catalogue, crammed full of fashion-right outfits for the whole family — plus a special section giving you some great sew-and-save hints. Still just one dollar, including a free pattern coupon.

For the pattern, the catalogue, or both, write to: Stitchin' Time, Dixon Evening Telegraph, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to include your own name, address and zip. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

SWING INTO SPRING by making a flattering, versatile tunic pantsuit of Creslan acrylic in a soft knit.

Harry Fishbein baits the hook

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Every time we think of deceptive plays, we come back to a standard play that wasn't standard 35 years or so ago. Harry Fishbein of New York was the first to make it.

Fishbein sat West and was defending against a six-no-trump contract.

He opened the nine of spades. His partner slapped the ace on dummy's queen and led back a spade. Declarer proceeded to cash two spades, three hearts and three diamonds — slowly and carefully — in the manner of a man who had a problem somewhere.

The manner did not matter to Harry. Harry knew that his jack of clubs was the only card South could be worrying about and he would only have that worry if his four-card suit were clubs.

So, when finally South led dummy's king of clubs and East followed with the three, Harry dropped the nine spot.

This really gave South a cause to think. If the nine had not dropped, the play to his ace would have been automatic because there would be no way to pick up four to the jack-nine in the East hand.

Now, South could pick up four to the jack in the East hand; so he plays dummy's queen of clubs. After that play there was no way to finesse the jack. 22

Pistol packin' judge gets offer for help

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A district court judge who began carrying a gun because of threats against his life has received offers of help from citizens who say they'll use guns, dogs and posess to protect him.

Sam Sullivan says he has received five death threats in the last five days, the latest threat telephoned to a local radio station on Friday.

Authorities say they believe the threats stem from a drug raid last weekend which resulted in nine arrests.

"I signed the search warrants," said Sullivan, 65, flashing one of several pistols he carries or keeps in his home and car.

"This is a .38-caliber hammerless," he said, explaining that he carries the hammerless weapon so it "won't hang up when I pull it out of my pants pocket."

An elderly man, one of a number of citizens who has offered to help protect Sullivan, suggested that he could stand watch with his shotgun at the Bryan County Courthouse where the judge presides.

And two sisters, Pauline Pitts and Sybil Millar, wrote Sullivan that "if threats on your life continue, we will get on our horses and ride to your rescue. Accompanied by our dogs and the posse, we can gather en route, your safety is assured."

"Have no fear. We helped elect you and we plan to keep you in office. Depend on us."

Sullivan says he appreciates the offers but that he feels secure with his pistols. He keeps three of them in his two-story home, which is patrolled by police during the night.

His wife, Grace, keeps two other weapons in her car, and she carries a gun in her purse. Another gun is kept in the judge's car, which is equipped so that the trunk and hood cannot be opened from the outside.

One of Sullivan's staff members is carrying a gun in her purse.

"I don't know if she knows how to use it or not, but she told me she wanted it so she could protect me if necessary," he said.

Despite the recent threats on the judge's life and other threats that date back to 1948 when he sentenced three Atoka County men to death, no attempts have been made to kill Sullivan.

He says he believes in protecting himself, but he does not worry about an attack.

"Being a Baptist, you're automatically a fatalist. I believe what is to be will be. I believe the day I was born The Almighty knew the day I would die," he said.

A former state legislator, Sullivan says he owns "no offensive weapons. They are not meant to rob or unduly injure or kill. They are meant to protect — and that is the first law of nature."

Tornado hits in Tennessee

By The Associated Press

A tornado whipped into the northeastern section of Jackson, Tenn., today, injuring more than 17 persons in a trailer park.

Authorities said the injured were in satisfactory condition.

Eighteen trailers were damaged as the twister ripped through, then skipped, an industrial park and Jackson State Community College nearby.

Meanwhile, a storm churned into the northern Rockies after dumping rain along the Pacific Coast and heavy snow inland.

Gale warnings flew along the Washington, Oregon and northern California coasts. Dangerous surf pounded coastal areas Friday night.

More than an inch of rain soaked San Francisco through Friday, and up to 13 inches of snow piled onto Mt. Shasta in northern California. Three inches of snow fell on Reno, Nev.; 2 inches dusted Spokane, Wash., and 5 inches blanketed Owyhee, Nev.

Heavy-snow warnings were out for the Oregon Cascades and the Sierra Nevada in California. Travelers were advised also of blowing snow in the northern Rockies and southern Plateau, and that blowing dust and sand could be expected in Southwestern desert areas.

The National Weather Service said the heavy rains in northern California could bring the upper end of the Sacramento River and the Russian River out of their banks today.

Science journalist Daniel S. Greenberg wrote in articles for The Washington Post and for Columbia Journalism Review that the society is correct in saying that there has been substantial progress in cancer treatment since the 1940s. But he maintained that most of that progress was made before 1955.

Since then, survival rates have reached a plateau and have even worsened in some cases, Greenberg wrote.

Survival rates are based on the percentage of cancer patients who live five years or more after discovery of the disease.

Reports such as Greenberg's "are good. They're healthy. They're accurate. But they stop short," said Frank J. Rauscher, director of the National Cancer Institute which directs the three-year-old federal effort.

PTO seeks to keep 6th graders

A "brain session" was held Friday night by members of the Grand Detour PTO to discuss the Dixon School Board's proposal to bring sixth grade students at the Grand Detour School to Dixon for classes in the fall.

The basic purpose of the meeting according to Mrs. Mervin Helt, who along with her husband are co-presidents of the PTO, was to come up with ideas and alternatives to keep the sixth grade class at Grand Detour. No decision was made by parents in the organization but different groups are checking into various ideas, including the financial status of the district, before a second meeting April 4 is held to go over the ideas. Members of the PTO plan to come up with an alternate solution to present to the school board for its approval.

Mrs. Helt said there was more to it than just keeping the sixth graders at Grand Detour School. She said once the sixth grade is gone, the following years might mean the transferring of fifth and fourth graders to the schools in Dixon.

Year after embargo, energy situation unclear

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year at this time, the oil pipeline from the Middle East opened up again after the embargo, but much of the news this past week reminded Americans the energy crisis was still with us.

Robert Sarnoff, Chairman of RCA Corp., created a stir on Thursday when he disclosed that his company had developed a transistorized device called a microprocessor that he said could boost gasoline mileage in autos as much as 40 per cent.

The major automakers confirmed that such electronic devices were being tested as a means to greater fuel economy, but there was uncertainty about their practical application in the near future.

Meanwhile, Saudi Arabia gave American oil companies a little clearer picture about their role in the country's oil industry after production is nationalized.

The Saudis said the companies would have access to the country's refined products, while the Saudis would assume a larger role in the marketing of its petroleum products.

The oil companies also got some news from Washington—news they have not been awaiting. The Senate voted to increase the taxes paid on the foreign operations of the multinational oil companies as it considered the future of the oil tax depletion allowance.

In other energy news, the Supreme Court held that rights to offshore oil belong to the federal government, thereby denying the claims of Eastern states to the potential petroleum wealth off their shores, but beyond the three mile limit.

Major oil consuming nations laid the groundwork for a $25 billion fund to aid each other if any of the countries have trouble footing the bill for their energy needs.

Also in the financial dealings of the world's energy network, Kuwait became the third oil-producing nation to sever its national currency from the dollar. The oil-rich nations are still quoting the price of their products in terms of the U.S. currency, however, so the effects on the consumer will be slight, if any.

Consumers were told this past week, though that the cost of living went up again in February. On an annual basis, the consumer price index rose 7.2 per cent, the same as the January increase.

Food costs were down, but this was offset by other consumer items. For example, the price of a new car rose as imports overshadowed the rebate programs of the Detroit automakers.

Looking ahead for good news, though, a variety of surveys released this past week said that consumer confidence was on the rise after six months of decline. As this transforms into new spending plans, consumer spending will be an important factor in any economic recovery.

Balloting for both the Dixon School Board race and the Sauk Valley College board elections will be conducted at the six elementary schools in the Dixon School District from noon until 7 p.m.

At Sauk five persons will compete for two 3-year terms on the board, and two will vie for one 1-year term.

Students 'bury' fired teachers

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — About 250 strong, an angry group of teachers and parents gathered before a coffin on the steps of the Alton High School to conduct a mock funeral for the school system Friday.

"We have assembled here to pay our final respects at a symbolic funeral for 70 teachers who expired Wednesday as the result of the assassination of the Alton school system," James Lippert, president of the Alton Education Association, said.

Wednesday night the board of Alton Community School District 11 voted 5-2 to dismiss 70 teachers and close four grade schools in an effort to save $1,062,000. Defeat of a 40-cent property tax increase at the polls recently mandated the cuts, they said.

At the end of Lippert's eulogy, the dismissed instructors filed by the casket and dropped in slips of paper numbered 1 to 70. Nine fired teachers with tenure served for pallbearers.

Lippert said the AEA will meet with representatives of the governor, with state Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, and leaders of civic groups in an effort to save the teacher's jobs and keep the schools open.

There are 772 teachers and 11,845 pupils in the district. The cuts are effective at the end of the present term.

Four teams left for 1975 crown

Blazing windup for Class AA tourney

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — There'll be a blazing windup to the Class AA Illinois High School Basketball Tournament today with four teams, all of whom like to run, shooting for the title vacated by Proviso East.

Proviso East, seeking to become the fifth team in history to put together successive titles, was sidetracked by Chicago Heights Bloom and Kelvin Small, 57-56, in Friday night's windup of the quarter-finals.

Bloom joined Chicago Phillips, Peoria Richwoods and East St. Louis for today's semi-finals.

Phillips and Richwoods, both with snappy 30-1 records, were to meet in the first game with East St. Louis, 23-6, and Bloom, 22-9, going at it in game No. 2. The losers will meet in a consolation game tonight followed by the championship windup.

There was absolutely nothing in Friday's quarter-final play that could match up with Bloom's revenge. The Trojans, who went ahead 6-0 only to fall behind by as many as 12 points late in the third quarter, put on a stirring rally to avenge last year's championship loss when they fell before Proviso East 61-56.

And it was Small from the start to finish. Small scored the first three baskets of the game for Bloom's 6-0 lead and his 17 points in the first half prevented Proviso East from taking any more than 31-23 half-time lead.

But Small ran into foul trouble and sat out practically the entire third period as Proviso East cruised to a 40-28 lead before the Trojans came battling back.

Led by Small and Bob McCoy three times battled to within a point of the lead. Twice they were turned back but not the third time. With 10 seconds left, Dan Williams missed a one-on-one free throw and Bloom rebounded.

The Trojans came down, missed two shots and then Small tapped in a rebound as the capacity crowd of 15,887 let out a gigantic roar which shook Assembly Hall.

Small finished with 31 points and McCoy with 15 while bewildered Proviso East was led by Roderick Floyd with 20 points.

East St. Louis defeated Bloomington 73-66, Peoria Richwoods rolled past Rockford Auburn 65-52 and Chicago Phillips eliminated a surprisingly rugged Waukegan team 67-61.

Hubert Hoosman, putting together a tremendous second half when he scored 21 of his game-high 25 points, led East St. Louis past Bloomington and All-Stater Bob Bender.

Bloomington led 16-15 at the quarter and 29-28 at the half, but Hoosman collected 13 points in the third period to shove East St. Louis ahead 52-47.

Bloomington, led by Chuck Oien who had 24 points, and Bener, who finished with 14, came back to twice tie the game, at 56-all and again at 58-58 but never could get back in front.

Richwoods didn't play one of its better games and Coach

Wayne Hammerton admitted it. But the Peoria Knights had too much firepower for the Rockford Knights as All-State Chris Williams, although hitting only one of 10 shots from the free-throw line, finished with 19 points.

Derek Holcomb added 18 to the Richwoods total while Lester Thompson topped Auburn with 18.

Auburn fell behind 9-8 in the early going and Richwoods never relinquished the advantage. Auburn made several swipes by coming within a point or two but whenever the Rockford team threatened, the Peoria club would shift into high gear and pull further ahead.

Phillips, the tournament favorite from Chicago, found the going rough against a strong Waukegan team led by Heywood Campbell who scored 19 points. Phillips, however, had balance with All-State Larry Williams and Marty Murray scoring 16 points each and Bob Byrd and Norm Perry collecting 14 each.

Waukegan's downfall was Chris Calhoun's foul difficulties. Calhoun hit four straight baskets to bolt the Bulldogs in front before he left in the third period with four fouls.

Phillips took advantage of the situation and outscored Waukegan 15-1 in one stretch to move back in front.

Waukegan never again saw the lead but the Bulldogs tied it at 52-52 and came within a point at 62-61 before Phillips sealed it with five straight points.

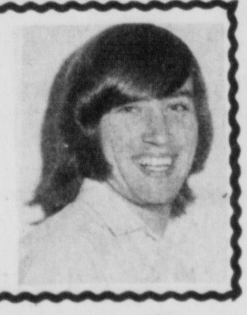

MUD LOVERS— Members of the Dixon High School track team learn to appreciate the finer things in life like getting closer to nature as they prepare for the upcoming season. John Ortgiesen (left) and Doug Stouffer test the muck, humorously referred to as the Dixon track, on Friday. If Rock River stays within its banks, it never rains and the surface somehow dries out, the Dukes will host Ottawa on April 3. (Telegraph Photo)

All sorts of tidbits

By MIKE CUNIFF

The 1974-75 area basketball season is history now, after uncounted games, fouls, points and hours spent viewing, interpreting and writing about the outcome. With 13 area teams plus Sauk Valley, high school wrestling and girls basketball, the work seemed endless.

Sports taffers from the Dixon Evening Telegraph covered over 100 basketball games and 30 wrestling meets during December, January, February and the first part of March. In a 13-week season, I covered 52 basketball battles and a half dozen wrestling matches.

Tim Lyon, our wrestling writer, was at 21 meets and also staffed 10 basketball games. Conni Dettman found time to see 14 basketball games, and Bob Wallace had nine contests while helping out part-time.

In the area schools, Amboy was covered 12 times, followed by Oregon's nine, Franklin Center and Polo with eight each; Newman, Ohio and Walnut, seven apiece; Mt. Morris six; Ashton five; Forreston four, and Paw Paw three.

Bob Klaas of Chicago Christian has signed with Northwestern University in the first big name Illinois basketball prospect selection of a college.

Received a track schedule from Ohio High School in the mail Friday morning. Would appreciate the same from all other high school spring sports coaches.

I also got a call Thursday morning from a Dixon taxpayer, who mentioned the fact the DHS track team was using the street in front of the high school for practice since the track can not be utilized. If someone else has feelings on the matter, please drop me a line and the letter will be printed. Only signed letters will be printed but your name will be withheld if requested.

Mt. Morris High School will stage a round-robin basketball tournament at Thanksgiving to open the 1975-76 season. The four teams competing in the three-day tourney are South Beloit, Amboy and Morrison, in addition to the Mounders. The tentative dates are the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday preceding Thanksgiving.

Amboy High School will hold a Young Kids Wrestling Tournament on April 12, to begin at 9 a.m. There will be three divisions: midget for 10 and under, junior for 11- and 12-year-olds, and intermediate for 13- to 15-year-olds.

There will be eight weight classes in each division, with an entry fee of $1.25 per boy. The tournament is for eighth grade and under students. Admission will be 75 cents for adults and 50 cent for students. The meet is sponsored by the Amboy Rodeo Association.

The annual meeting of the Dixon Men's Bowling Association will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Dixon American Legion Hall. On the agenda is the election of officers for the coming year and the report of the annual bowling championships.

A record $950,000 will be split up during the National Basketball Association playoff pool. Broken down, the team with the highest percentage in the Association at the close of the regular season will receive $40,000. If there is a tie, it will be divided equally.

The team with the highest percentage in the Eastern and Western Conferences shall each receive $40,000. The team with the second highest percentage will each receive $27,500. The third highest will split $20,000; the fourth $15,000 and the fifth highest will get $10,000.

In addition, the winning teams in the qualifying round will get $20,000 and the losing clubs $17,500. The winning teams in the conference semifinals will split $37,000 and the losers $32,000. The winning teams in the conference finals will get $43,500 and the losers $33,500.

The winner of the championship series will receive $110,000 and the loser $70,000. Thus, it is possible for a team to win a record $270,500 if it has the best percentage in the National Basketball Association in the regular season and wins each round of the playoffs, including the championship series. Based on 12 equal shares, each player would receive $22,541.67.

NEW YORK—Players wishing to receive hardship consideration and thus be eligible for the National Basketball Association's 1975 college draft must file an application at NBA headquarters no later than April 8, the draft, to be conducted via a nationwide telephone conference call, will take place May 8.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Every one of the eight teams which made it to the Class AA Illinois High School Basketball Quarter-finals on Friday scored fewer points in their game than their season-scoring average.

Peoria Richwoods, for instance, scored only 65 points in defeating Rockford Auburn. That total was almost 20 points below their 85.3 regular-season average.

The other schools and their season averages were:

Chicago Phillips scored 67 Friday with an 81.4 average; Waukegan scored 61 with a 62.3 season average; Rockford Auburn scored 52 compared with a 66-point season average; and Bloomington had 66 compared with a 72.7 season average.

The other two schools were: East St. Louis which had 73 with a 77.1 season average, and Proviso East with 56 and a 68.3 season average.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The pairings for today's Class AA games:

12:15 p.m. Chicago Phillips (30-1) vs. Peoria Richwoods (30-1).

1:45 p.m. East St. Louis (23-6) vs. Bloom Chicago Heights (22-9).

7 p.m. Third-place game.

9 p.m. Championship.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Bloom of Chicago Heights had the best field-goal shooting percentage of Class AA tournament winners in Friday's quarter-finals.

Bloom connected on 22 of 39 shots for a .564 percentage. East St. Louis was 31 of 62 for .500 while Peoria Richwoods was 20 of 51 for .438. Chicago Phillips took 67 shots but made only 26 for a .388 percentage.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Of the four finalists in the Class AA Illinois High School Basketball Tournament, Bloom has the highest enrollment and Peoria Richwoods the lowest.

None are small schools, however, and are far beyond the Class AA minimum of 751. Bloom's enrollment is 5,200. East St. Louis 2,900 Phillips 2,840 and Peoria Richwoods 2,030.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Hubert Hoosman of East St. Louis is the current scoring leader in the Class AA Illinois High School Basketball Tournament.

Hoosman scored 25 points against Bloomington to give him a two-game tournament total of 57 points. Derek Holcomb of Peoria Richwoods is second with 48 while Kelvin Small of Bloom and Charles Anthony of East St. Louis are tied with 42 each.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — It has been 45 years for Bloomington and 31 years for East St. Louis since the schools last sent basketball teams to Champaign as finalists in the Illinois High School Association's playoffs.

For two other teams, it was the second appearance in Champaign in two years.

Proviso East and Chicago Heights Bloom, both 1975 members of the final eight Class AA teams, met last year in the Class AA finals. Proviso East won.

The last time Waukegan sent a team to Champaign was in 1969 and for Rockford Auburn, it was 1963.

Chicago Phillips and Peoria Richwoods each made first appearances among the final eight this year.

Dick Motta, the fiery coach of the Chicago Bulls, apparently will do almost anything to help his team win...even absorbing two technical fouls and being ejected from a game.

At least, that what Phil Johnson, coach of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, thinks.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that Dick Motta deliberately drew the two technicals in the second quarter...to ignite his team," Johnson said Friday night after the first-place Bulls had beaten the Kings 104-98 and opened a 2 1/2 game lead over Kansas City-Omaha in the Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association.

"I can't comment on the technical fouls, but I'm glad Phil Johnson felt I ignited my team," said Motta, who was ejected in the second period for disputing a foul call and appeared to shove referee Earl Strom. "He (Strom) charged me when I came off the bench and I may have hit him in the chest, but I didn't shove him."

Bob Love paced Chicago with 28 points and 13 rebounds, while the Kings' Nate Archibald led all scorers with 33 points.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Sports writers and broadcasters who covered the Class AA quarter-final basketball game Friday between Peoria Richwoods and Rockford Auburn studiously avoided referring to either team by their nickname.

Both are called the Knights.

Peoria Richwoods defeated Rockford Auburn 65-52 to advance to today's semifinals in the Illinois high school Class AA playoffs.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Two coaches among the eight who brought their basketball teams to Champaign for the Class AA Illinois High School Basketball Tournament are in their first year as a coach.

Tom Hodgson of Bloomington and Coy Nunn of East St. Louis both are freshmen at their respective coaching jobs.

The coaches with the most experience are Wes Mason, who has coached eight years at Chicago Heights Bloom, and Herb Brown, who has put in seven years at Chicago Phillips.

The other coaches and their years of experience are Glenn Whittenberg, six years at Proviso East; Howard Long, five years at Rockford Auburn; Wayne Hammerton, five years at Peoria Richwoods, and Robert Joor, four years at Waukegan.

In other NBA games, the Detroit Pistons beat the Houston Rockets 121-110, the Boston Celtics downed the Buffalo Braves 109-101, the Washington Bullets topped the New Orleans Jazz 122-109, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Atlanta Hawks 114-103, the Portland Trail Blazers edged the Phoenix Suns 112-108, and the Los Angeles Lakers outlasted the Seattle SuperSonics 112-109 in overtime.

Pistons 121, Rockets 110

John Mengell's scored 28 points, Curtis Rowe tossed in 22 and Bob Lanier added 21 points and 11 rebounds to lead Detroit.

Trail Blazers 112, Suns 108

Sidney Wicks hit 23 points to lead Portland to victory.

Lakers 112, Sonics 109

Zelmo Beaty and Brian Winters each sank two free throws in the final 44 seconds of overtime, carrying the Lakers past Seattle.

Bullets 112, Jazz 109

Elvin Hayes pumped in 28 points and Mike Riordan chipped in 25 to pace Washington.

76ers 114, Hawks 103

Fred Carter scored 30 points to push the 76ers past Atlanta.

Cubs' strategy backfires

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs refused to let the California Angels use a designated hitter in Friday's exhibition game. In effect, the Cubs designated that the California pitchers should bat for themselves.

Naturally, it backfired.

Charlie Hudson, the second California pitcher, forced to come to bat in the fourth inning, designated a two-out single off Ken Frailing and Joe Lahoud followed with a two-run homer that gave the Angels a 4-1 lead.

They went on to a 6-4 triumph but even the victory and the last laugh didn't do much for Manager Dick Williams' disposition.

"It's like saying if we don't play by their rules they'll take their ball and go home," he seethed. "We're not forcing them to use the rule, but I can't understand why we can't use a rule which applies to us during the season."

Elsewhere, the day was a disaster for the New York Mets' beleaguered pitching staff and a boon for some former Mets. While the red-hot Los Angeles Dodgers were cuffing three Met hurlers for 15 hits en route to a 13-5 rout, ex-Met Nolan Ryan and ex-Met farmhand Hudson yielded one run in six innings in California's victory over the Cubs, ex-Met Tommy Moore combined with Bob Forsch to pitch a one-hitter as the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Boston Red Sox 3-0 and ex-Met star Gary Gentry limited a split Houston squad to two hits in four innings as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Astros 5-1.

In other games, the rest of the Astros blanked the Minnesota Twins 3-0, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Detroit Tigers 5-3, the Philadelphia Phillies edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 43 in 10 innings, the Oakland A's beat the San Diego Padres 4-2, a split Kansas City squad thumped the New York Yankees 8-4 while the rest of the Royals blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0, the Montreal Expos nipped the Texas Rangers 6-5 and the San Francisco Giants bopped the Milwaukee Brewers 4-1.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D 612: Mary D., aged 19, is active in her college YWCA.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "I have read your column ever since I was a sophomore in high school."
"Meanwhile, I was also active in church work and served as president of our Young People's Society."
"But your psychoanalysis of many church concepts has caused a lot of debate."
"For example, you show that Jesus believed in very 'selective' philanthropy instead of indiscriminate free food and free healing."
"And your explanation of the Golden Rule is very unusual so could you explain that idea more fully?"

Golden Rule
The Golden Rule says that whatever we would have people do to us, we should then do to them.

This is a wonderful concept. But maudlin sentimentalists have misinterpreted it to the degree they wish to exempt criminals from punishment.

Many clergymen have even succumbed to this wrong idea of the Golden Rule and thus advocate meek surrender to those who mistreat us.

According to the Golden Rule, as Jesus enunciated it, we should punish those who mistreat us!

For example, if we cultured Americans should deliberately beat, rob or maim and kill other innocent people what should we wish done to us?

"We should have somebody punish us and teach us better manners!" is the reply of intelligent moral adults.

Therefore, if we would want ourselves punished for such wanton mistreatment of others, then we should likewise prescribe similar punishment for those who attack us!

For that is exactly what the 100 per cent Golden Rule recommends!

For 50 per cent of it covers not only our wish to have others help us when we are sick or helpless.

But the other 50 per cent of that Golden Rule concept then prescribes that if we realize we should be punished for sadistic cruelty to others, then we should insist on similar treatment for other sadists, robbers and murderers!

Alas, churches have too long advocated merely a 50 per cent Golden Rule!

Thus, they have urged us to feed, clothe and medicate the hungry, naked and sick.
For that's how we'd like to be treated if in the same hungry, naked or ill condition.

But always keep in mind that 100 per cent application of the Golden Rule!

Then we should do to others what we'd wish done to ourselves, and all intelligent people should want themselves punished for deliberate wrongdoing!

Furthermore, you cultured readers wouldn't want yourselves subsidized in laziness, as by free food stamps or free medical care, if you were able to work or merely feigning illness!

Therefore, the Golden Rule would prescribe that we also refuse to indulge the shiftless and malingering (medical four-flushers).

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
"Fun" activities will command most of your attention today. But do heed the little voice that tells you not to make too much of a good thing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You're anxious to make some changes around the house. Don't undertake a major renovation. You'll run out of steam before it's finished.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You're eager to exchange ideas with others. However, it's best to avoid debate on religion or politics.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
You've got a good handle on your financial affairs today but avoid telling another how to handle his money. You could create havoc.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You and your mate may conflict on a topic up for discussion. Don't air your differences in front of others. It will embarrass all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You are still in a profitable cycle where benefits come from unusual sources. Be wary — one not entitled may demand a share.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Avoid the center of the stage with friends this evening. You'll be much better off staying on the wings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Someone who is out to get your goat will try to slip in a few barbs today. Don't give him the satisfaction of knowing he irks you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Weigh your words carefully before you speak today. Blurring resentful thoughts will offend companions and provoke an argument.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Have a clear-cut understanding with one who seeks to borrow something. Make known you expect it returned in the same condition — and on time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
If you don't show your mate the attention and consideration you give others, you'll only hurt yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You are very creative and productive today. However, if there's heavy work required, get assistance before. Don't overdo it.

your birthday
March 23, 1975
You will develop a powerful and influential business contact who will prove to be a profitable asset this year. His goals will be in harmony with yours.

STATE FARM INSURANCE

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— I saw your column suggesting to a woman that she should start a program to increase her muscles in order to lose weight. That's a new idea to me. Would you explain a little more just how one goes about improving their muscles? What kind of exercises and how often does it take? I'm interested in losing weight, but I sure don't want to develop big bulging muscles. It might look all right on a man but not on a woman.

DEAR READER— Women don't have to develop big bulging muscles to do something about muscle building to control their body weight. In fact when done properly it helps most women look a lot firmer and trimmer.

The problem with most exercise programs to control weight is that they are designed to run or burn off calories and that takes a lot of continuous effort.

The basic principle of weight training is to lift a load that is light enough that you can lift it three times in succession without difficulty. When you get so you can lift it 12 times in a row without trouble then you should increase the load. You don't need to strain and grunt or produce hernias.

And, here is the best part, you don't need to have a long daily exercise program. If you lift a weight three to 12 times, three days a week (with one day of rest between the exercise days) you will grow muscle mass faster than if you try to lift the same weight more times daily or several times a day. Too frequent exercise actually slows down the development of muscles. They need time to respond to your stimulating them by weight training.

Most of the gymnastic exercises help to build muscle because the muscle is loaded with the body weight. Push-ups and pull-ups are good examples. You can develop a good routine of these so that all of the muscles in your body are put under load for several repetitions.

And, here is another good point. Once you have developed your muscle mass to the optimal level for you, it is possible to maintain the same amount of muscle and strength by doing the exercises only once a week.

Isometric exercises that contract one muscle against the other one also help to build muscle mass. There are differences in opinion as to how much good you get out of them or how much you need to do, but you can get some benefit.

I think it is important to get some good supervision when you first start a muscle strengthening exercise program so that you will be using all the muscles properly without straining yourself. Many of the YMCA and YWCA organizations are equipped to do this for you.

The muscle building program will build energy tissue that will enable your body to use more energy at rest than it does if too much of your body weight is fat. In two people of identical weight, one fat and the other muscular, the muscular person will use more calories at rest and will have more energy.
